Four Convicted in Circuit Court For Armed Robbery

All Receive Life Sentences In State Penitentiary

Monday of this week the case of Commonwealth versus Brack Bolling, Chester Bolling, Charne Turner and Loser Barger was called. The case created a great deal of interest in Squire Fields' court here a few weeks ago when some of the defendants made a confession and Monday when the case was called for trial, the court room was packed.

All of the defendants when arranged pleaded not guilty and were represented by Attorney John D. W. Collins. A jury was soon empaneled as the parties were not originally citizens of this county, the Bollings having lived here for a year or so, Turner and Barger being from Perry County. The defendants were charged with armed robbery of Moses Adams, which happened early in December at Hot Spot. The proof showed that the Bollings, who lived at Hot Spot had gone down to Perry County to the homes of Barger and Turner. They told them they could make some easy money up in Letcher County by robbing Jim Banks at Hot Spot. That Barger and Turner came to Hot Spot and made arrangements to go to the Banks home under the pretense of buying some goods. That the defendants were to go to the hills and at one time to go to the Mr. Banks and his home, on the last trip to go to Mr. Banks, his son and his daughter all heavily armed and they were ordered away. When they decided to rob Moses Adams, night watchman for Gordon Coal Sales Company and this was carried out. They approached Adams about 10 o'clock at night and made him go to his house and turn over to them the sum of $18.76 which he had recently drawn. The evidence indicated that Barger and Turner did the robbery, aided and abetted by the Bollings. Arguments were made in the case and the jury soon returned a verdict of life imprisonment. It was shown that the men had all been convicted formerly for Grand larceny, this being Turner's third conviction.

Henry Cook Acquitted On Murder Charge

Henry Cook, who was indicted for the willful murder of Clay Swenney on the 24th of December, was tried in Circuit Court Tuesday. The case continued into Wednesday and a verdict of not guilty was returned.

The evidence indicated that Cook had been shot after being knocked down by Swenney.

Harry M. Kincer, Age 16, Passes On

Harry M. Kincer, 15 year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Kincer of Kona died at the home of his parents, Wednesday, January 12th. He had been sick since early in November, when he had an attack of eye-ophid fever.

He was a member of the Regular Baptist Church. His mother and father he leaves four brothers and three sisters, all mourning his passing.

Grand Jury Returns 42 Indictments At The January Term

The Grand Jury of the January Term of Circuit Court of Letcher County was dismissed Saturday after spending a busy week in which they examined 114 witnesses and returned 42 indictments. Below is the report printed in full that they made to Circuit Judge, H. Monroe Fields upon completion of their work, which we are printing for the benefit of our readers at the request of many.

To the Honorable Judge of the Letcher Circuit Court:

We the grand jury of the Letcher Circuit Court respectfully report as follows to wit:

1. We have been in session six days and have examined 114 witnesses and have returned 42 indictments. 2. We have not owing to the limited time investigated all violations of the law, but we have endeavored to look after what we considered the most needful, ever seeking information from all witnesses who appeared before us.

3. The whiskey business in this county, we find to be deplorable, in that those who drink and get drunk most always use boisterous, vulgar and unbecoming language—such as the children, ladies and gentlemen should not hear—such being a public nuisance.

We have made no indictments against those in possession of slot machines but have been vigilant, trying to locate or find out the parties or firms, alien to this county, who like the octopus they are, maintain a hold on the interests of other. The public in general, thereby extracting much money from our citizens for which nothing is given in return. We are sorry that we have not been able to locate it or them, but feel that we are due some of the good citizens an apology who have been gulled by them into the matter unaware of its many evils.

We therefore advise all who have slot machines in their possession to get rid of them at once in some way, or the law will get you. If this counsel is not heeded, we advise that the executors of the law take possession of them, as well as those who possess them, and turn them over to the proper court to be dealt with.

We also report that we do not find many witnesses willing to tell about the many nuisances that exist in this county, some of whom have not obeyed the summons of this jury, the cause unknown.

4. We have inspected the jail of the county and find it in a very lamentable state, many of the windows broken out, the bedding scant and unsanitary (probably on account of the many prisoners, so that the bedding can't be spared while washing). Also the roof looked to be leaky. Some of the cells and windows need repairing as they are unsafe to hold or keep prisoners in their present condition, we therefore recommend that the Fiscal Court of this county take immediate steps to improve these conditions and make the jail safe in which to house prisoners.

We further report that we inspected the rooms and toilets of the court house and find same to be in fairly good condition. The toilet rooms in the basement only, we criticize for want of cleanliness.

In most respects we believe that those in charge of the court house and jail are using much effort in trying to make things sanitary.

All of which is respectfully reported.

STRANGE . . . But True

By B. F. Adams

Gouverneur Morris, one of America's greatest aristocrats, was sent to France to represent the United States government during the French Revolution of 1789. Morris despised the French Revolution and hated the leaders of the movement. While Louis XVI was in prison awaiting execution, Morris accepted seven hundred and fifty livres to bribe the king's jailers to allow him to escape. Morris used part of the money but Louis was too indolent to follow his plans.

Under our Federal Constitution the freedom of speech and press may be done away with unless the state constitution forbids the act. Nineteen states have laws which limit the right of free speech and of the press. These laws are known as "sedition" laws and are aimed to prevent the spread of communism and radicalism.

The chief cause of the War of 1812 was the impressment of the American seamen The American government provided every sailor with a certificate which showed his nationality. The English sailors were deserting their ships and buying these certificates for one dollar each. The British authorities found out about this and began to ignore the certificates. This led to war.

The American militia, who were opposing the advance of the British on Washington, D. C. were completely demoralized because the British shot rockets at them. The British were running low on ammunition and some one thought about shooting the rockets. The American militia had never seen a rocket sizzling through the air; hence the panic.

Do you know why we speak of the presidential palace as the "White House"? When the British invaded Washington, they burned the presidential palace, and after the war it was rebuilt and repainted to hide the smoke. It was painted white; hence the name "White House."

July 4th seems to be an unlucky day for our presidents because three have died on that day. The presidents who have died on July 4th are: Thomas Jefferson, John Adams and James Monroe.

Baptist Brotherhood Meets Tuesday Night

A large assembly of men report that fellowship is fast increasing in the Baptist Brotherhood organization. A number of visitors also attended.

This was the first meeting held since the installation of officers in December.

A program has been setup that is large enough to give every man from eighteen years of age up a chance to fill the missionary desire created by his love for Christ Jesus.

Fellowship of laymen and the pastor was the main thought in this meeting. This was given very clearly by Rev. J. S. Bell, Fleming, Ky.

Music by Mr. Lee Rentschler, of Louisville, was very pleasing.

The pastor gave the Constitution briefly, and every expression seemed to indicate approval.

The officers for this year are given below:

Emmitt G. Fields, President. Lee Adams, Vice-President. Ben P. Sergeant, Secy.-Treas.

Oscar Lewis, Group Captain. Clayton Sexton and Sam Collins, Jr. Assts. Klair Bach, Group Captain. Woodford Webb and Jack Passmore Assts. To fill the man of sorrows with new joy every day is evidently the aim.

Woodrow, Mary and Nellie Dawa-hare made abusiness trip to Huntington, W. Va., last week.

Baptist Church Has School of Missions

Miss Josephine Jones, State Young People's Leader of the Woman's Missionary Society will have two classes daily at the Baptist Church this week. At 3:30 P. M. each afternoon the Junior and Intermediate girls will study under Miss Jones leadership "Around the World in the Southland." The pastor will have the boys at the same time teaching "David Livingston".

Each evening at 7:00 P. M. Miss Jones will have a class for young ladies and women on "Saved to Serve." The pastor will have one for the men at the same hour.

Two films on Japan and China will be shown Monday and Tuesday evenings. On Friday evening we will have all the pictures of Clear Creek Mountain Springs shown.

The church offers during this week outstanding opportunities to our young people and adults. These pictures will all be of great value in many ways. The classes under the direction of our State leader offer very rare privileges.

Overhead Bridge To Be Built Below Blackey

The Highway Commission has ordered right of way to be obtained, for the balance of the link which has not been built connecting the road leading by the way of Blackey and Jeff to Hazard at once so that the contract may be let and this road completed. This is the highway leading up the river from Hazard and has been completed except about 2 miles below Blackey where there is an overhead bridge to be built across the river and the railroad. The rest of the road has been built for some time but the completion of this two miles has been delayed due to building of the bridge. Now the Highway Commission has definitely located this section of the road and just where the bridge will be placed, they state construction will be started as soon as obstacles are cleared out of the way.

This is an important road and will mean much to the lower end of the county. People living around Ulvah and the mouth of Linefork will then have a completed highway into the county seat instead of having to go down to Jeff and then back over route 15 as they do now.

Local Delegates Report On Y. W. M. Conference

The first Sunday night in January was a big night at the Young People's meeting at the Presbyterian Church.

Yarlet Swisher, Helen Craft and Helen Caudill gave an account of their trip to Atlanta, Georgia.

Atlanta had planned for 1,000 at this conference and 1,400 came. 300 registrations were sent back for lack of accommodations.

Many youthful leaders of the church were there giving their ideas about the future. Helen Craft and Yarlett Swisher were the official delegates from the church and the inspiration they brought back with their Southern accent made all the young people feel that they were in Atlanta for a while. They have been asked to bring the young people to Marlowe C. E. and make a report Sunday night.

Dick Springall, captain of the team, was talking to the coach when Frank entered the little office. Kane introduced them. Springall shook hands and looked the freshman over.

Kane didn't beat about the bush. "You've played football, haven't you, Merriwell?" he asked.

"Yes, sir, some."

"Where?"

"With Bloomfield high."

"What position?"

"Backfield."

"Why haven't you come out for Fardale?"

"There's a reason why I can't, Mr. Kane."

"What reason?"

Frank could feel the heat getting into his cheeks. "I can't answer that question, sir."

The coach's heavy eyebrows rose slightly. "That's odd. You must know how it sounds, Merriwell."

"I do," Merriwell's embarrassment was growing. "But I can't help it, sir."

"Huh! Were you any good?"

"Well, now, Mr. Kane, you wouldn't expect me to brag about myself, would you?"

"I've seen you running in the gym and I've been told you can drop-kick a football pretty neatly. You're built right. You keep yourself in shape. We lost half our best men last year. We've got a big squad now, but it isn't so hot. You don't look like a slacker."

"I hope I'm not, sir."

"Well, whatever your reasons are for not joining the squad, there must be some way to get around them. I'd like to see you out on the field tomorrow afternoon."

Now Frank looked positively ill. "But I can't come," he replied as if denying himself something he would like to do more than anything else in the world. "If I could, I would. I hope you believe me, sir."

Kane was silent a few moments, gazing searchingly at the freshman, who appeared uneasy and distressed. "All right," he said presently. "We'll drop it for the time being, but I'm not at all satisfied."

Merriwell went away from there feeling low. Something in Springall's face had cut him deeper than the doubt and puzzlement of the coach. The captain of the team had looked at him, and it wasn't anything to advertise in the newspapers.

Frank didn't want to talk to anybody about it. Not even Barney. It was a sore spot that he wanted to hide. But hidden sore spots have a way of becoming infernally uncomfortable. Somebody always gets to prodding around them.

He tried to put the whole thing out of his mind, but it simply wouldn't let him. He had been able to shake thoughts of Inza Burrage much more easily, for he was convinced that she just didn't stack up. Her brother was all right, all right, but plenty of first-string brothers had sisters who paid no dividends. They were not in the preferred class.

Frank continued to avoid the football field. Whatever Coach Kane or Dick Springall thought of him, he couldn't help it.

Two days later, Mulloy came galloping into their room and found Frank there, alone, and up to his ears in a math problem. The Irish boy was as calm as the Atlantic ocean in a howling gale.

"Do ye see me fist?" he cried, shaking it in the air. "Do ye see it, lad?"

"I don't need a microscope for that," said Merry.

"Well, I'm looking for handcuffs to hold it. Already it's taken the power of my mighty will. Right in the middle of the campus, too."

"Now who was the careless offender who escaped death by the breadth of a hair, Barney?"

"There were six of them and they were talking about you, Frankie. They put a question to me that touched me off. They wanted to know if it's true you're carrying ice-cream feet in your shoes since you got a little bit hurt in a game of high school football last season. That, they said, is the low-down some goofy guy has dug up about ye, me lad."

Frank's face had gone white. The sore spot had been uncovered. Somebody had done it and then had made haste to dish the dirt.

Barney Mulloy couldn't get it. Every time he went into a huddle with himself and tried to find the answer the thing just wouldn't boil down. Still he was ready to bet his life that Merriwell was no quitter. He had seen plenty to make him dead sure of that.

About most matters Frank was as frank as his name, but when it came to telling why he couldn't play football he was as stingy as a slot machine. He simply wouldn't give down.

"Nosey people are annoying, Barney," he had said, "but every time you let them put you on the defensive you've slipped. I've found out that a good reason can sound like a poor excuse when you're forced to give it."

And that had left the Irish boy fog-bound.

Hodge had fumbled badly in thinking Merry couldn't fight just because he wasn't the scrappy kind with a swollen sense of his own importance and great eagerness to make others concede it. When the time came to do so Frank had shown his speed, and the shock to his enemy had been greater because of the delay. Good military tactics for a long campaign.

Another thing he had shown by quickly stepping in between Barney and Bascomb when the latter had turned pugnauciously to pick up the Irish boy's slam about timbriegers. He had shown that he would fight for a friend quicker than for himself. Even Bascomb had caught a glimmer of that truth.

Now, only for one thing, Mulloy would have been sure of Merriwell's disappointed enemies were out to smirch him with a lie forged by malice from nothing at all. But Barney had seen Frank lose color over the campus gossip which he had brought to his ears, and that wasn't his way of reacting to pure bunk. He would have laughed at it.

Still the faith of the Irish boy wasn't shaken. He told himself it would all come out in the wash, but he wondered when washday would come round.

Football talk was in the air at Fardale, for the date of the first game lay close in the offing.

Coach Kane was said to be in a low state of mind about the team, but then "Old Kaney" had a habit of being pessimistic before he got the machine oiled up and running well. And, of course, the opening clash with Mayfield wasn't anything to lose sleep over, anyhow. That was in the bag, they said. It would be just good warming-up practice for State Second the following Saturday. That was when the home "Musketeers" would have to step into it to keep from being snowed under.

Frank didn't talk football, even with his classmates, and he avoided listening to it when he could. He appeared to have his mind fixed on other things, but Barney had a hunch that that was mere outward seeming. He certainly wasn't up to scratch as his own cheerful self. There were moments, in fact, when something like an unhappy shadow haunted his face.

He wasn't in the great crowd of cheering fellows that gave the team a send-off Saturday, when it left for Mayfield in the big school truck and several private autos. Nor was he conspicuous by his absence; for those fellows, even if any of them gave him a passing thought, had no reason to imagine he would ever do anything they would want to write home about.

Sitting alone in his room, he heard the sounds of the distant cheering, and the text book on which he had been trying to fix his attention was struck by the ague.

He dropped the shivering thing and got up to walk the floor like an animal caged from its rightful freedom.

Mulloy came, a while after the cheering had stopped, and found him still walking up and down.

"Well," said Barney, "I hope it won't break your heart to hear that our dear roommate didn't make the trip with the team today. He was left in the lurch."

Frank felt like replying that somebody else had been left in the lurch, but he didn't. It was late in the afternoon when he made an excuse to get away alone.

The autumn woods were putting on a faint gay touch here and there, but there was no faint touch of the light and gay in Merriwell's heart as he followed an old dirt road that wound through a grove beyond the hill. Jaws hard, hands sunk into his pockets, he swung along with his gaze on the brown road in front of him.

He scarcely noticed the barking of a dog until he heard a shrill familiar boyish voice calling to him. Then he saw them running toward him, Tad Jones and another dog.

"By golly, Frank! By golly," cried Tad as he came up, "I never expected to bump into you over here." He was all steamed up, excited and laughing. "Looker my new dog, Frank. Ain't he somethin' slick? Just look at him, Frank."

Merriwell knelt down right there and fondled the lively black Scottie that responded as if he had found a long-lost brother.

"Oh, gosh, he'll git you all over dirt, Frank," worried Tad.

"He's a grand dog. Just the right dog for you, Tad."

"That's the kind Miss Inza said he was, and she's always right, she is—except when she lets that sneak Hodge come sapping round her," said Tad. "What she sees in him has got me stumped."

Frank got up, brushing off the dust left by the dog's paws. "Were you surprised when you got this dog, Tad?"

"My stars, yes! That's why I call him S'prise for his name. You see, Miss Inza never told me a thing about it till she fetched him. 'Nd he was awful hungry 'nd she had me feed him first. 'Nd she talked to him 'nd told him he b'longed to me, 'nd by golly he knew just what she said, for he just showed it that he was my dog from that minute. Don't you think she's swell, Frank?"

"Oh, sure," said Merry.

From behind him came the sound of galloping horses. Turning, he saw two riders come round a curve of the road, side by side. They were very near and he recognized them instantly. Bart Hodge and Inza Burrage!

Both wore riding togs, and like Bart, Inza was mounted astride. She rode beautifully and looked—well, simply great. Her cheeks were flushed and she was laughing. A picture that would not be so easily kept out of Frank Merriwell's dreams.

It was a race, and they did not see Frank and Tad until they were sweeping by. Then Inza cried: "Hello, Tad! Oh, hello, Frank!" And on they went, with puffs of dust shooting up from the heels of their horses.

"By golly," said Tad Jones, staring at Bart's back. "I never go out in the woods without a gun, that I don't see somethin' 'nd I'll shoot 'em."

That brought a wry smile to Frank's face. "Come on, old pal," he said, "let's walk it off, you and I and S'prise together."

The dog barked and out circles around their feet, eager to go. This was his happy day.

A raw wind from off the ocean brought in the dun drift of clouds late in the afternoon. Over Frank's head the night mail roared northward under a low and heavy ceiling before he got back to the school.

And there he found a cloud of gloom also, with much low moaning and muffled sounds of pain; for the telephone had brought the incredible news that Mayfield had licked Fardale, 14 to 12.

The school was stunned.

Never since the dark ages before Fardale had employed a professional coach had little Mayfield High been able to get within shooting distance of the Musketeers in a football game. Never until this black Saturday, on the morning of which the odds that Fardale would win again had been the sky against what have you.

The first telephoned reports of the disaster had sounded like a hoax. Unbelievers—and they were twenty to one in the mass—had called it baloney. Who had said so, they wanted to know. And when told that Pete Smith, Fardale's own reporter for a city newspaper, was the authority they had heaved sighs of relief. That fellow just couldn't help trying to be a funny guy.

But when somebody called Dick Springall, the Fardale captain, and he confirmed the bad news the heavens came crashing down.

Merriwell heard it from Bob Gagg, Gagg's almost missing chin, the bulging eyes behind his spectacles, and the husky croaking of his agitated voice made him look and sound like a frog raising a lament from the depths of a dismal swamp.

"And you better keep away from that gang on the campus, Danny Deever," he said. "They're talking about hanging slackers in the morning."

A slacker! That was how they rated him. Of course it had come from the coach or from Springall, who had been present when Kane had talked with him.

In his room, Frank stripped off his clothes. Then, wearing his bathrobe, he made for the nearest shower to wash off dust and perspiration. He didn't whistle as the cold water splashed over him. This wasn't his day for whistling.

Mulloy was waiting for him when he returned. "Have you heard the shocking tidings, Frank?" he asked.

"I've heard Fardale was beaten. That's all," Merry replied.

"Well, more details have come in. The 'Grand Canyon' was full of empty tomato cans. He kicked like a sick inchworm. Missed the bar twice, and those two points would have been, sad enough."

"It has been a gummy day."

"I think that big shot is just another false alarm," growled Barney. "If—and when—he makes another pass at me, he'll get the works."

There was a knock on the door. Merriwell wanted on the phone, called a voice.

"Ask 'em to hold it one minute, please," requested Frank, speeding his dressing.

"Now," said Mulloy, "who would be after calling you, Frankie?"

"Your guess is as good as mine. If they'd said long distance was calling I'd have been worried. I told you that my uncle's illness was what made me late about getting here."

"Maybe it's something about—about football," said Mulloy.

"Don't be silly, Barney. Nobody would call me about that."

"Well, it's time ye were called," barked the Irish lad, "and told to stop your ducking."

Merriwell was surprised, when he got into the phone booth, to hear the voice of Tad Jones over the wire. The boy seemed to be all choked up with excitement and alarm.

"That you, Frank—that you?" he spluttered. "I been tryin' to get Miss Inza but she's gone out again. Can't you come? You just gotta come, Frank!"

"Now take it easy, Tad, and tell me what's the matter."

"Oh, they've grabbed my dog! They've took him away from me! They've got him 'nd they'll kill him!"

"Who's got him?"

"Mike Dugan. He's the dog catcher. I ain't got no license for S'prise 'nd they took him. They been killin' dogs 'thout no licenses, 'nd now they'll—"

"Where are you now, Tad?"

"Fletcher's drug store."

"Stay right there and wait for me. I'm coming."

Canada's Arctic Areas Are Divided by Nature—Western and Eastern Sections

Canada's Arctic possessions are geographically divided by nature into two parts—the Western Arctic, reached from the Pacific ocean and down the Mackenzie river; and the Eastern Arctic, to which access is gained from the Atlantic ocean and Hudson bay. Brought about by the ever-widening search for minerals and by the use of aircraft as a means of transportation and exploration, impressions of the Northwest territories have undergone considerable change within the past 20 years.

Once regarded as being almost inaccessible, observes a writer in the New York Herald-Tribune, many areas are today within a few hours' flying time of a number of cities and towns in western Canada. In spite of the northern latitude, the territories are not entirely regions of perpetual ice and snow. The winter is long and cold but in the short summer the temperatures are high and the long periods of sunlight promote rapid growth of vegetation. In many parts of the Mackenzie valley vegetables are grown for local consumption, and the so-called "barren lands" yield a profusion of wild flowers and mosses.

Since the Seventeenth century the territories have been an important producer of furs, and have contributed upwards of $27,000,000 in furs since 1922. Having in mind the need of conserving the game and fur-bearing animals as a means of livelihood for the Indians and Eskimos, the Canadian government has set aside large areas as native game preserves.

While the fur trade is still a chief industry, the future of the northwest territories lies also in the development of its mineral resources. Previous to 1929 the most important mineral development was the discovery of oil on the Mackenzie river near Norman.

Dating the Years
Christendom did not begin to date its years from the birth of Christ until almost 550 A. D., says Collier's Weekly, when the method was introduced by Dionysius Exiguus, a learned monk of Rome.

HOW to SEW RUTH WYETH SPEAKS

Making Over a Chair of the Ginger-Bread Era.

TO modernize the old walnut chair at the right the pieces under the arms were removed and most of the carving covered up. The padding at the back was removed entirely and replaced by a fiber board which was covered by a loose cotton filled cushion tufted like an old fashioned bed comfort except that the tied thread ends of the tufting were left on the wrong side.

This back cushion was fastened in place with tapes that slipped over the knobs at the ends of the upper carving. If the knobs to hold the cushion had been lacking it could have been tacked in place along the top on the under side by using a strip of heavy card-board to keep the tacks from pulling through the fabric as shown here for tacking the box pleated ruffle around the seat as at A. A plain rust colored heavy cotton upholstery material was used for the covering.

Rising Tide

A new magazine has made its appearance on the newsstands of the country. It is pictorial in character under the name of the "Rising Tide," originally issued in England and now being prepared for distribution in eleven countries under nine different languages. The magazine is reported to be a non-profit publication carrying no advertising but such matter that is of interest to the people of the world who are seeking answers to their own problems. It is said that these problems are covered without regard to race, class or creed.

GONORRHEA

Previously the venereal disease question was discussed in general terms, and Syphilis, the major of the venereal diseases, was discussed at some length. Gonorrhea, the second one in importance, will be written about for this week's reading.

Gonorrhea is a highly communicable disease occurring most often in the male and female reproductive organs; it may easily be transmitted to the eye of the patient or other people. It due to a Specific germ called Gonococcus—a round or "biscuit-shaped" bacterium. It is most frequently gotten by illicit sexual congress, yet not always, as oftentimes little babies get this disease in their eyes shortly following birth; the mother may have contracted it innocently from her wayward husband or contaminated articles such as towels, sheets or other soiled linens.

There is estimated to be some where around 25 million cases today in the United States—a staggering amount, yet thought to be a conservative estimation of the cases with gonorrhea. Gonorrhea is often termed the "great preventer of human life" because so many cases having gonorrhea become sterile (not able to beget children). Gonorrhea, does not, as many believe, change into syphilis, or vice versa; both are due to a specific germ, and one does not change into the other; often the patient may have both, though at the same time. Again, unlike syphilis, Gonorrhea does not invade the blood stream.

Symptoms: The first sign noticed is a "discharge" from the sex organs, white at first, but usually later turning to a yellowish fluid. The disease may often be self-limiting getting seemingly alright before a very long time; again with the best of treatment it may require months to get an apparent cure. The great Sir William Osler (one of the greatest physicians of all time) made this statement about this disease: "Most any one can tell when Gonorrhea begins, but God alone knows when it ends." This statement still rings true today. Little children are very prone to contract the disease most easily from some one having it in the family if the case is careless. When once this disease gets into an orphanage it is most difficult to control.

Complications: The most frequent and distressing complication is that of Gonorrheal Rheumatism—a very stubborn affair with which to cope. Bladder and Kidney disorders follow a case. The female reproductive organs are very apt to become diseased, often causing sterility. Many an abdominal operation is due to this disease whereby the ovaries and tubes had to be removed. In the male the testicles may become involved causing great and painful swelling (often with sterility.) Also Stricture (closing up of water pathway) is seen in many cases.

Treatment: There is NO specific treatment as we have in syphilis, many medicines are used—some with success, others to little or no avail. The most important thing is Rest in bed in the acute stage of the disease hoping to prevent the above serious and far-reaching complications. Injections of many solutions are tried (too often overused); vaccines are tried with success at times. For the complications that arise we resort to Heat to the affected parts, and Surgery is often the only alternative especially in the female; remember that much of so-called "female trouble" is gonorrhea in the terminal stages.

Hybrid Corn Does Well In Jessamine

Franklin Wade, a Jessamine county Utopia club boy, found hybrid corn better than common kinds by eight and one-half bushels to the acre. He made field tests with yellow corn that had been grown on the farm. On thin upland, hybrid corn produced 38 bushels to the acre and the yellow corn 26 bushels to the acre. On more fertile low land, the hybrid corn produced 60 bushels to the acre, and the yellow corn 55 bushels to the acre.

Rockhouse News

Two of Rockhouse's leading citizens, M. Hisey Caudill and Mr. General Adams are serving on the jury at the present time. Mr. Wilburn Hampton, of Jeremiah, Ky., is starting to serve the people as Justice of the Peace of Magisterial District No. 4.

Two adult schools are functioning on the Rockhouse, one on Doty Creek under the supervision of Howard Caudill and one on Blair Branch under the supervision of Mr. John Q. Adams.

Sunday school teachers from Stuart Robinson School conduct classes at Carbon Glow, Sycamore School and the Doty Creek school.

Mr. James Caudill, whose house was accidentally burned on Doty Creek, is rebuilding on the same site and will soon have the new building completed.

The age of electricity is fast invading lower Rockhouse. Many families have bought washing machines and the following persons have recently bought electric cooking stoves Bill Adams, Wilburn Hampton and Frazier B. Adams.

The Holiness Church is conducting a revival at the Little Colly School each night. The services are under the direction of the Rev. Lee Francis.

The Rockhouse Road, which leads to Blackey, has recently been numbered No. 7. Many Rockhouse citizens are talking and striving to get this road connected below Blackey so the state will hard surface it.

Less Monthly Discomfort

Many women, who formerly suffered from a weak, run-down condition as a result of poor assimilation of food, say they benefited by taking CARDUI, a special medicine for women. They found it helped to increase the appetite and improve digestion, thereby bringing them more strength from their food.

Naturally there is less discomfort at monthly periods when the system has been strengthened and the various functions restored and regulated. CARDUI, praised by thousands of women, is well worth trying. Of course, if not benefited, consult a physician.

Noted Bee Authority Coming To Kentucky

Kentucky beekeepers, meeting during the Farm and Home Convention at Lexington, will hear two addresses by Dr. E. F. Phillips of Cornell University, one of the world's best authorities on bees. He was formerly with the United States Department of Agriculture. Called to Soviet Russia, he acted as an advisor of the Russian government in developing the production of honey in that country.

Another speaker on the program is Lawrence King, Letcher county who produced 2,500 pounds of honey last year, and who is one of the largest beekeepers in Kentucky.

The campus families spent a happy time together during the Christmas vacation, and of course the teachers and students who went home thoroughly enjoyed their trips.

School reopened on January 3 and this week we are having mid-term examinations. Several new students are to come into the dormitories at the beginning of the second semester on January 17th.

The boys of our basketball team are rejoicing in the fact that they have new suits this season.

Mrs. L. P. Larkey, of Hazard, spent a few days with Mrs. P. A. Tice last week.

The many friends of Mr. S. A. Knox will regret to learn that he is no longer connected with Stuart Robinson School, he having resigned to accept a position with the Larro Milling Company of Detroit, beginning work the first of the year. Mr. Knox has been a valued member of our faculty for over five years and will be greatly missed.

Miss Sallie McCrorey of Woodland, Georgia is spending some time with her niece, Miss Jennie Lee Crafton, having returned with her after the Christmas vacation.

Mr. P. A. Tice drove to North Carolina last Tuesday, taking back to school at Flora MacDonald College. Misses Dorothy Tice and Mary Louise Cooper, of Stuart Robinson and Miss Jackie Larkey of Hazard. Accompanying them was Mr. Newton Smith, who returned to Davidson College.

Miss Lillian Cooper resumed her work at Glade Valley High School, Glade Valley, North Carolina last week and Miss Francis Knox returned to Georgia State College for Women at Milledgeville, Georgia.

It is with deep regret that we lose Mr. and Mrs. M. H. Alcorn and their splendid children from our community and church. Mr. Alcorn has been transferred to Lothair, and the family plans to move to Hazard right shortly.

Mr. James May has been chosen Chairman of the Board of Deacons, and also Treasurer of the Doerman Memorial Presbyterian Church at Blackey, following the resignation of Mr. M. H. Alcorn, who formerly held these offices.

Eight homes and one church have been included in a landscaping project in Carroll county.

IS YOUR TELEPHONE IN YOUR NEIGHBOR'S HOME?

It is often embarrassing to ask a neighbor to let you use her telephone. Of course neighbors are gracious about lending, in your household's little emergencies, but sometimes it is troublesome to both parties when an unexpected caller wants to borrow the telephone.

Possibly the embarrassment in using a neighbor's telephone arises from the fact that while one can return flour or coffee in full, borrowed telephone service cannot be repaid in kind.

If you seriously consider the many services the telephone renders many times each day, and compare its value with the small cost, you will probably agree that it is false economy to try to do without it.

It is easy to order your telephone. Just get in touch with the Business Office, or give your order to any telephone employe.

This fellow has to be plenty good --- just to keep alive!

Throw a man into a ring with one arm strapped to his side and set of hobbles on his feet. Then turn loose half a dozen huskies to do their worst with him. If he survives at all, he's got to be PLENTY GOOD. And if he comes out ON TOP, it's a miracle!

That miracle has been happening for the last two decades with this railroad, and with a lot of others over the country. Restrictive laws and regulations, rising wages and mounting taxes, subsidized competitive forms of transport, descending rate scales—all these and more have been met in the course of business combat—but withal the railroads have made their service more dependable, more efficient, faster, safer, and more friendly.

Those of America's railroads still operating out of receiverships have had to be PLENTY GOOD to survive. They have given a service so essential that nothing else could replace them. That many of them have not only survived but also have made notable progress, can be credited to that American spirit which fights on in the face of almost overwhelming odds.

America today enjoys the BEST railroad service in all the world . . . at the world's LOWEST railroad rates. You can ride safely, swiftly and luxuriously for two to three cents per mile. Your freight—sand to silk—moves at an average rate per ton per mile of less than a penny—much of it from door to door.

There is comfort in the hope that railroads may yet be treated according to their accomplishments and contribution to national progress, rather than be bedeviled by political and un-economic handicaps which no business ought to be called upon to face.

This railroad would prefer to spend its energies in helpful, constructive effort for its communities and thus deserve their good will and patronage.

EASY WAY TO OWN A BIG CAR

Why be content with a small car when the same money buys more in a slightly used Buick?

Reconditioned 1936 and 1937 Buicks are now being offered by Buick dealers at prices of cars in the lowest price class.

Valve-in-Head Straight-Eight Engines — Bodies by Fisher — Hydraulic Brakes — Torque-Tube Drive — Safety Glass. See your Buick dealer today!

MONEY talks — so take a turn up and down Automobile Row and see what it says about Buick.

First off you discover, that this sparkling stepper is the lowest-priced of all the straight-eights of its size.

Next — it lists at lower figures, even, than some sixes do, and it's within a dollar or two a week of several others.

But the story isn't told in the bare prices — it's told in the astonishing amount those modest figures cover!

In the SPECIAL, for instance, you get 122-inch wheelbase, 107 horsepower with straight-eight smoothness, valve-in-head efficiency, and the exclusive new DYNAFLEX brilliance and thrift.

You get comfort of a new kind, with Knee-Action on the front, and the scoop of the year—BuiCoil TORQUE-FREE SPRINGING — on the rear.

On top of that, you get elbow-room, leg-room, head-room; smartness inside and out; and probably the lightest, sweetest, pleasantest handling wheel you ever laid hands on!

All in all, this great Buick is the car that makes little money do a lot of big talking — that's why there's such a mighty fine feeling to owning it.

Go look at the price tags, and what's behind them, and you'll spend from now on in a Buick enjoying life!

For Meringues.—Eggs that are several days old make better meringues than fresh ones.

Stuffed Celery.—Blend two tablespoons of peanut butter with two tablespoons of butter and one-quarter pound of grated cheese. Work until smooth, then add one-quarter teaspoon of Worcestershire sauce and paprika, then stuff crisp celery hearts. This mixture is also delicious as a sandwich spread or to use for stuffing dates or prunes.

Selecting Meats.—Good beef or pork or calves' liver is very bright in color and has little odor. Remember these points when selecting it.

Preserving Stockings.—Because perspiration acids are among the worst enemies of good hose, clothing experts advise washing stockings after each wearing—in lukewarm water with mild soap.

For Cooling Cakes.—An ordinary wire dish-drying rack makes a good cake cooling rack when turned upside down.

A Needed Utensil.—A knife sharpener is as essential a piece of household equipment as the coffee pot. Not even an expert carver is able to do much with a dull knife.

Caring for Knit Garments.—In wearing and caring for knit garments, beware of rough surfaces, which cause thread breaks. Give the garment rest periods; steam and reblock occasionally.

Preparing Starch.—Stir a piece of lard about as big as a five-cent piece into your starch while it is boiling. Your clothes will take on a nice gloss, and the iron will not stick.

Don't Neglect Them!
Nature designed the kidneys to do a marvelous job. Their task is to keep the flowing blood stream free of an excess of toxic impurities. The act of living—life itself—constantly produces waste matter. The kidneys must remove from the blood if good health is to endure. When the kidneys fail to function as nature intended, there is retention of waste that may cause body-wide distress. One may suffer sagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—feet tired, nervous, all worn out.
Frequent, scanty or burning passages may be further evidence of kidney or bladder disturbances.
The recognized and proper treatment is a diuretic medicine to help the kidneys get rid of excess poisonous body waste. Doan's Pills. They have had more than forty years of public approval, and endorsed the country over. Look for Doan's. Sold at all drug stores.

"Business is so quiet that we better have a special sale," said the shoe merchant.

FOILED

"Yes, I have a clerkship in which I could make money, if it wasn't for one thing."
"What's that—the cash register?"

"AREN'T the dolls beautiful?" exclaimed Joan to her mother, as she gazed upon the finished product of the "Two Little Dolls in Blue" which Dorothy May had ordered from Santa Claus. "They are quite the loveliest I have ever seen," spoke mother. "I do believe that you have put your very heart and soul into their fashioning."

Joan had spent many days and nights, too, stitching a loving holiday thought into each tiny garment. The dainty materials had been transformed into things of beauty. The dresses of pale blue silk with bonnets and slippers to match, had proclaimed them the "Two Little Dolls in Blue!"

"Oh, won't Dot love them!" beamed Joan, as she again eyed the dolls from head to foot with a happy smile of complete satisfaction.

"I dare say this will be her happiest Christmas, one that she will never forget," said mother.

Christmas eve, with its bright lights and cheer, was in full progress and the two little dolls in blue were being fondled by one of the happiest little girls in the world.

Rocking in her own tiny chair Dorothy May began singing a lullaby to the dollies, wholly oblivious of the attendant surroundings. It was such an adorable sight that the others had stopped their celebrations and were beaming upon her with transformed emotion.

The spell was broken when Dorothy May suddenly stopped singing and called out, "What shall I name the 'two little dolls in blue'?"

"Well," said Joan, smiling thoughtfully, "since they are dressed in blue and are two very important little ladies, why not call one Alice Blue and the other Elinor Blue?" And so the dolls were named.

On Christmas morning in another house around the corner, Bonny Jean awoke with the joy of the holiday and shouted, "Mother, did Santa come and did he bring me a big baby doll with curls and eyes that open and shut?"

"Yes, dearie, Santa came and brought you a very pretty doll."

Then sprang it, seated beneath the tree dressed in scarlet finery, Bonny Jean clasped it to her breast. Upon close inspection she soon learned that it was the same sort of doll she had always received, only with new features.

Just as she was about to burst into protest at her bitter disappointment there came a rap upon the door and a kindly neighbor was saying, "Merry Christmas." Then with a happy smile—

"What is the matter, little girl? Hasn't Santa Claus come yet?"

"Oh, yes, he came, but he brought me the same old rag doll again. I thought sure it would be a real one this year, because I'm nine, you see."

"Oh, I am so sorry," said Dorothy May, with true feeling and thinking of the two beautiful dolls which Santa had left for her. Then with a happy Christmas thought, she whispered something very lovely to her mother.

They all went right over to the big house on the hill nestled under its burden of Christmas snow. Bonny Jean forgot all about the rag doll when she glimpsed the great tree through the holly wreaths in the window. But when she saw the two little dolls in blue sitting beneath it her joy was unbounded. She clasped her hands and danced with glee. "Such darling dolls!" she gasped, breathlessly.

"Their names are Alice Blue and Elinor Blue," said their little mistress, proudly.

"I want to give you one of them, Bonny Jean; which do you like?"

With unbelievable surprise, her eyes fairly dancing with joy, she clasped the beautiful doll in her arms and asked, "Is it—really—mine—for—keeps?"

"Really and truly for keeps," said Dot.

Dorothy May explained it all to her mother after the happy little girl had left, that somehow she just did not miss Elinor Blue very much when she saw how happy she had made Bonny Jean.

In her heart she felt that it was truly "more blessed to give than to receive," and hugging the one little doll closely, she whispered, "Merry Christmas, Alice Blue."

Niftiness for New Year's

LIKE to give yourself a lift for the New Year, Milady? Then spruce up with Sew-Your-Own—the easy way to chic. Here, for instance, are three swell swing models that will make you modern as tomorrow and put you in the running for the title, "best dressed woman." Right now it's parties you're thinking of, so pick a pair of eligibles from today's trio and you'll be groomed to hobb nob with the smart young set.

Will You Dance?

The New Year's Party will be festive and so will you in the model at the left in black moire.

This is a very young frock and not a little flattering to the debaunt figure. It has a skirt that's built for dancing, and the oh, so slender waist is no drawback (take it from one who knows).

Be sure, young lady, to have your version ready to go when the invitation to celebrate comes flashing over the wire.

Spice 'n' Classic.

There's always a "morning after," and that's when you'll be glad to have a spic and classic frock like the one above, center.

It is suitable to take back to school to rouse the roommate's envy and, pleasantly enough, it's so easy to cut and stitch, a freshman can't go wrong. Make one version in flat crepe and a carbon copy in sheer wool—it is superb both ways.

Ah, My Friends.

How about a two-piecer of lame and velvet for that rousing family reunion over the holidays? The model above, right, is two pieces, but it's one with chic and figure flattery. You'll have your aunts making ohs and ahs and the bright young cousins calling you

"the duchess"! What's more you'll look the part—a stunning compliment to your family as well as to the New Year.

The Patterns.

Pattern 1330 is designed for sizes 12 to 20 (30 to 40 bust). Size 14 requires 4½ yards of 39-inch material plus 6 yards of green-grain ribbon to trim as pictured.

ONLY NEWSPAPERS BRING THE NEWS OF VITAL INTEREST TO YOU

Headlines may scream of death and disaster without causing you to raise an eyebrow. But if your son gets his name in the paper—that's real news!

It isn't by accident that this paper prints so many stories which vitally interest you. For this newspaper was edited for you and your neighbors. News of remote places is stated briefly and interpreted. Local news is covered fully, because all good editors know that the news which interests the readers most is news about themselves.

Now is a good time to learn more about this newspaper which is made especially for you. Just for fun ask yourself this question: How could we get along without newspapers?

'HOT AIR CURTAIN' BARS WINTER FROM OLDSMOBILE PLANT

Oldsmobile workers are now protected from wintry drafts, as new cars leave the end of the final assembly line, by an overhead device which forces air through heating coils and then downward to form a 'hot air curtain' across the open door. The man on the left is outside the 'curtain'—temperature 19 degrees; the man on the right is 'inside'—temperature 72 degrees. This unique device permits the door to be open at all times during working hours.

HOGS OF TODAY LEARN TO TAKE THEIR MEDICINE

Gray Summit, Mo.—For many years doctors have advised patients to swallow pills with a glass of water. But it was not until recently that anyone figured out that it would be easier for a hog to take a pill the same way. The ease and naturalness with which the new type of jaw spreader and water gun developed here at the Purina Experimental Farm, works, cuts down the amount of labor and time needed for worming hogs, and does a far more effective job than the old method of forcing the medicine into the animal.

The cost of treating hogs for roundworm by this new method is less than one pound of pork per hog. Unthriftiness and death losses are cut down, and the feed, instead of going into the nourishment of worms, goes into the building of pork. Pigs can be wormed any time after they have been weaned, although it is NOT advisable to worm diseased hogs or animals that have been vaccinated for cholera within the past three weeks. The sooner pigs are wormed the faster they grow and the better use they make of feed.

Used With Pigsules

The patented jaw spreader and water gun available at all feed stores selling Purina poultry and livestock feeds is made for use with a special type of pigsule containing the ingredients recommended by the United States Department of Agriculture for the removal of roundworms in swine.

On the Purina Experimental Farm this method of worming has been successfully used for several years. Only two men are needed. One person straddles the hog and holds it in a semi-erect position by the front legs. This prevents any chance of the man administering the pigsules getting his wrists cut by the hogs' front hoofs. With the hog held in a fairly erect position, the jaw spreader, which is made of a U-shaped prong with two horizontal cross bars about an inch and a quarter apart, is slipped into the hog's jaw and pried down, forcing the animal's mouth open with no danger to the handler of being scratched or bitten.

Pill Is Washed Down

The water gun, with the Pigsule inserted in the end, is put into the mouth of the hog, and as soon as the pig stops squealing, the bulb containing the water is squeezed. The force of the water washes the pigsule down the hog's throat and gives him a good drink of water at the same time, so that almost before the hog knows what has happened, he has been treated. By this method the hog is dosed naturally and easily, with a minimum of time and trouble. Usually one worming by this method is enough, but if a few pigs in the lot continue to look rough, a second treatment should be administered.
